The section that follows provides an overview of the 21 youth currently committed to DJJ, with the earliest registered in 2014. This population most nearly resembles the population of youth likely to be committed to the SYTF. The section also contains an overview of the (#) of youth with a sustained 707(b) offense who received a disposition other than a commitment to DJJ. Since the passage of Proposition 57, in 2016, there have been three youth transfers from Alameda County to the adult system. Together, these three groups makeup the target realignment population. However, the primary goal of this Plan is to define the Secure Placement Treatment Facility and the associated program. Thus, those committed to the Secure Track is the population of focus. If funding allows, future Plans may include the broader target population. Those youth with 707(b) offenses who are not committed to the Secure Track continue to be served by programs and facilities currently in place at the JJC and at Camp Sweeney.	Erin Palacios & Vamsey Palagummi; Revised by IJ in green

14	Adopt	10	Suggested addition; would be last paragraph under "Focus on Relationships"	ADD: While a great deal of attention is paid to the staff of the milieu, the youth themselves are also a vital part of the social environment. Thus, opportunities for peer support and empowerment, as well as agency and self-direction will be actively sought out and encouraged. Given that youth will likely remain in this Program for several years, such relationships and sources of peer support will likely be important components of success.	Impact Justice, per suggestion by Andrea Zambrana

23	Adopt	14	Suggested addition would be last paragraph before "Credible Messengers"	One of the central benefits of juvenile justice realignment is that youth will remain close to their homes and communities. Using the most expansive definition of family, ACPD will engage and support youth in establishing the most connected relationships possible. It will further support youth's relationships through deep partnerships with contracted, community-based providers and volunteers at all phases of a youth's contact with the system. For youth with 707(b) adjudications who are not committed to the SYTF- ACPD will contract with and engage community providers and volunteers to serve youth in other settings or in the community, ensure access to the mentorship program described above, and provide robust family engagement and support. This will allow for a move away from stock rewards and sanctions and toward highly individualized approaches more likely to help youth internalize the core competency being developed within the process.
